Preface

Paying taxes, meeting deadlines, commuting to work, dealing with coworkers, being congenial to neighbors, waiting in line at the store, getting along as a family, keeping the car operating, or planning income for retirement—do these activities sound familiar to you? Life is full of pressing demands. Do you approach all of life in a godly manner?

You may think that the character of godliness belongs only to pastors who make their living doing church, to people who have time on their hands, or to women who seem to be naturally spiritual. The truth is, godliness is not for a select few. Godly living is a possibility for every follower of Christ, including real men.

In this study you will investigate Job, a man who integrated godliness into the entire scope of his life. You will discover that Job's life was more than suffering and sorrow. He was a real man who faced the same challenges as you. What set Job apart was his determination to do everything in a godly manner. As you study these lessons on your own or with a group of men, you will learn how godliness can become part of every area of your life. Real men are godly!
